Reg White

A warm smile crosses his face as volunteer Reg White thinks back on the time he has spent working with Habitat for Humanity. Over a decade ago, along with members of the men's group at his church, Reg spent a day working on a Habitat for Humanity build site. Since that day, he has become an active member of Habitat Newfoundland & Labrador. Habitat for Humanity's tie to faith is what first attracted Reg to the organization, but it's the rewarding experience of working with dedicated people that keeps him coming back.

Reg is a jack-of-all-trades. Whether he is involved in the construction phase or putting in hours at the ReStore, Reg enjoys working with active volunteers who share his dedication to helping local families.

As a familiar face at the local Habitat affiliate, Reg continues to pour his heart and soul into providing comfortable housing for local families in Newfoundland and Labrador. Thanks to great volunteers like him across Canada, Habitat is able to make the dream of homeownership affordable and achievable for many.

REBUILD. REDECORATE. ReStore.

Over 775,000 square feet of retail space is occupied by high-quality building supplies, home furnishing, appliances, and décor at Habitat's 74 Canadian ReStores. Much of what is donated – customer returns, unused building materials, and no longer wanted home items – would otherwise be thrown out. We did the math, and last year alone, ReStores diverted about 21,800 tons of material from Canadian landfills.

PLANNING YOUR NEXT HOME RENOVATION PROJECT?

Consider what you can donate to, or purchase from, your local ReStore – all revenue generated will help build affordable housing in your community.

From e-Waste to brighter futures

Do you have old, broken appliances and electronics taking up space in your house? If you live in Ontario, you can now dispose of these items in an earth-friendly, Habitat-friendly way!

Working in partnership with the Ontario Electronic Stewardship program, select ReStores are now accepting over 185 different household appliances and electronics, ranging from televisions and computers to hair driers and humidifiers. The best part is, by recycling these items with Habitat, you'll be helping build more affordable homes in your community!
